LEADER SPOTLIGHT

Meet Isaac Alexander

Hi, everyone! I'm Isaac Alexander (he/him), and I'm the SAAMUSC President. This is my fourth semester in the MLIS program, and I'm in the Archival Studies emphasis. Some archival topics that I'm passionate about are journalism/news archives, community archives, representation of marginalized voices in archival staff and collections, and uncovering how corporations create barriers to digital media preservation. I live in St. Louis, MO, and in my free time, I enjoy going to local parks, reading/watching anything Marvel, and baking.

ISAAC'S PODCAST RECOMMENDATION

Myths and Legends

"The Myths and Legends podcast is a really accessible introduction to myths, legends, and folklore from around the world. It's apparent the host cares deeply about his work from the amount of research he puts into it. He also uses the listener community as a resource sometimes to help get contextual information about lesser known (or, oftentimes, lesser known to Western audiences) tales. Expect to hear stories you've never heard before and different sides of stories you thought you knew by heart."

BONUS PODCAST RECOMMENDATION

Old Gods of Appalachia

Old Gods of Appalachia is a horror anthology podcast. It's exceptionally well-acted and written. I love a good horror podcast, and this may be my favorite. Old Gods feels like a spiritual experience in the same way hearing stories around the campfire can be moving, enlightening, and terrifying all at once. You might not want to listen to this at night, because the shadows in Appalachia contain some things better left alone.

UNIQUE COLLECTIONS

The Berg Collection: The New York Public Library's Collection of Weird Objects

From the New Yorker: "A lock of Walt Whitman's hair, Jack Kerouac's boots, and Virginia Woolf's cane are just a few of the items of literary paraphernalia available at the New York Public Library's Berg Collection."

Meet Kristen Brown

Hello! I'm Kristen Brown (she/her) and I'm the 2023-2024 SAAMUSC Vice President. This is my 4th (and almost last!) year in the MLIS program with an emphasis in Archival Studies, but my first year of being involved in the student chapter. I'm not sure what took me so long, but I'm so excited to be a part of this amazing community now! My professional interests include community archives, digital collections and accessibility in archives. I currently work as a coordinator for a digital community archive at a public library. My personal interests include weaving, reading, all the ramen I can eat, gardening and walking/hiking.

KRISTEN'S PODCAST RECOMMENDATION

Morbid

The hosts of this true crime/ paranormal podcast shine light on the lives and unique characteristics of victims, while also delivering well researched cases and theories, both on a national and local level. Throw in some silliness, comical banter and "Listener Tales" that retell real life experiences of the true crime and the paranormal and you've got the recipe for the perfect podcast, no matter your mood.

Meet Kayn Curry

Hi I'm Kayn (they/he) and I'm the SAAMUSC Secretary. This is my second year in the MLIS program and I've got one semester and a practicum left. My focuses are on cultural heritage institutions and Digital Asset Management for entertainment studios. Right now I work at a historic farm and park over in Utah in their education and special events department. I also help out with keeping the animals socialized. This morning I got to pet a 3 day old baby cow named Maple. In my free time I read a lot and am quite a fan of tabletop rpg.

KAYN'S PODCAST RECOMMENDATION

Critical Role

The only one I listen to regularly is an actual play Dungeons & Dragons podcast called Critical Role. They have been running for eight years and are on their third campaign. The podcast is just a bunch of voice actors who are best friends and they play Dungeons & Dragons every week. They also made an animated series of their first campaign that got picked up by Amazon and now they're making a series of their second campaign for Amazon too.

Meet Kelley Klor

I'm Kelley Klor (she/her) and I'm the SAAMUSC LISGSA Liaison. This is my second year in the MLIS program, and I plan to graduate in December 2023. I am interested in Native American archives and cultural heritage preservation, the Protocols for Native American Archival Materials, and the Shared Stewardship archival model. I participated in a graduate research assistantship for one year learning about extensible provenance methods and am excited to co-present at the Archival Education Research Institute and the Society of American Archivists conference this summer. I am an active-duty Air Force spouse of over 15 years and live in Northern Virginia. In my free time, I enjoy running, reading, hiking, and exploring the DC area with my family.

KELLEY'S PODCAST RECOMMENDATION

This Land

My favorite podcast is This Land by Crooked Media, hosted by Rebecca Nagel, a fellow citizen of Cherokee Nation. This Land is a documentary podcast detailing the attack on Native American tribal sovereignty through the legal system beginning with an 1839 assassination of two Cherokee leaders, a 1999 murder on Muscogee (Creek) Nation land, through current court cases involving the Indian Child Welfare Act (ICWA) that could determine the future of tribal land fights.

LEADER SPOTLIGHT

Meet Marcella Bogart

Hello! I'm Marcella Bogart (she/her). I am one of the SAAMUSC's program chairs. I started in the MLIS program in the fall of 2021; I will be completing my degree soon with a practicum, portfolio, and one final class. I grew up in central Wyoming and now live in Texas (but also sometimes Maine). I came to the MLIS program via the scenic route: For more than a decade I worked for a manufacturing company as the corporate media and advertising manager. I left my position to return to school to fulfill my dream of earning degrees in history. In my final year of graduate school before earning my MA, I conducted research using an entirely new online archive "Reveal Digital" (now hosted by Jstor) to research the construction of masculinity in the (Vietnam War era) GI anti-war underground press. Thanks to this digital archive, I had access to thousands of issues of these crude newsletters which are housed in dozens of small archives all over the country. The research I did would not have been possible just months before. The experience was an epiphany of sorts: Digital archiving was powerful and it seemed a way to bring together all that I had learned about meta-data and digital records in my earlier professional career with my love of history. Beyond this strong interest in historical digital archiving, I am a proponent of community archiving, and - because as a woman who studied history I am only too aware that the social privilege of rich white men is replicated in the preserved records - fostering a more diverse archival record. I am revising a bibliographic sketch of an early Texas archivist/historian named Llerena Friend with the hope of being published in a quarterly journal. I am married, have two kids, and Moxie the cat. In my spare time, I tinker with old typewriters and sewing machines, hike in Maine, take photographs of great neon signs, and read.

MARCELLA'S PODCAST RECOMMENDATION

Now and Then

"Now and Then" with Heather Cox Richardson and Joanne Freeman. Both Richardson and Freeman are professors of history and the authors of several books. The podcast puts current political and social issues in context with their historical roots. This includes examining the issues surrounding NARA and presidential records.

LEADER SPOTLIGHT

Meet Joelle Blair

Hello everyone, my name is Joelle Blair and I'm the treasurer for SAAMUSC. I'm from Saint Joseph, MO, a city north of KC best known for Jesse James, the Pony Express, and the Chase Candy Company. I got my undergraduate degree in elementary education but always thought I would go back to school for library science. I'm currently in the middle of my graduate coursework and hope to graduate next year.

Learning has always been important to me and I look forward to participating in the archival world when I graduate. Currently, I work as a librarian assistant at a local public library where I have enjoyed immersing myself in a world of books and media. Working in a public library has taught me that even though I'm a natural introvert I really enjoy helping the public and better acquainting them with library services. In my free time I enjoy knitting, watching BookTube/BookTok, watching old movies, and of course reading!

JOELLE'S PODCAST RECOMMENDATION

Lore

"Lore" is an award-winning, critically-acclaimed podcast about true life scary stories. Lore exposes the darker side of history, exploring the creatures, people, and places of our wildest nightmares.

Because sometimes the truth is more frightening than fiction.

Each episode examines a new dark historical tale in a modern campfire experience.

LEADER SPOTLIGHT

Meet Lindy Baudendistel

Howdy! I'm Lindy, and I'm one of the Communications Co-chairs of SAAMUSC, which means I'm the one who makes these monthly newsletters, and the posts on our social media channels. This is my second semester as a SAAMUSC officer, and my fourth in the MLIS program overall.

I'm originally from a small town in north Texas, and now reside in St. Louis, MO, working as an interlibrary loan librarian for the St. Louis County Library. I have a strong interest in history and cultural heritage, and specifically would like to work in an archive/information science space that focuses on recreation, tourism, and entertainment.

If you ever have a suggestion or recommendation for what to include in the newsletter, don't be afraid to reach out!

LINDY'S PODCAST RECOMMENDATION

You Must Remember This

"You Must Remember This is the podcast dedicated to exploring the secret and/or forgotten histories of Hollywood's first century."

Host Karina Longworth looks at various historical topics through an intersectional feminist lens: from the Manson murders connection to Hollywood, to the current season looking at sex as represented on film in the 90's and what that says about the era.

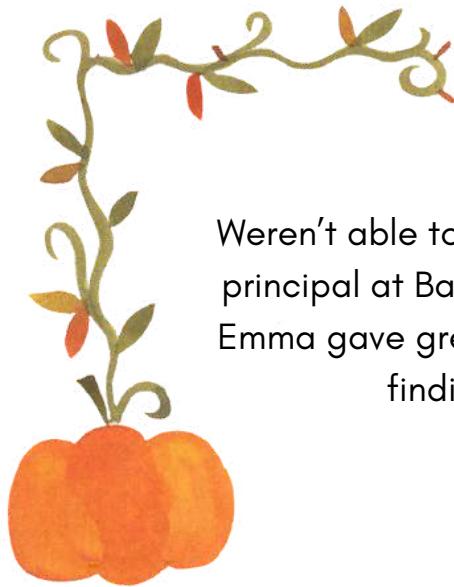

In time for fall and spooky season I highly recommend the short six episode season about horror legends Boris Karloff and Bela Legosi, and the rise of their parallel careers.

SAAMUSC OFFICER FAREWELL

This will be the last newsletter from this batch of SAAMUSC officers! We've had a great time this past year helping steer the ship of this incredible student organization. If you're interested in serving as a SAAMUSC officer next year be sure to reach out to Dr. B or any of the current officers! We'll be happy to answer questions or provide more information!

To end the newsletter we wanted some of the officers who're also graduating this December (congrats!!) to speak on their time with SAAMUSC and working on their MLIS at SISLT.

Isaac Alexander - President

I'm incredibly grateful to have served as SAAMUSC's president this year. The connections, space to ask questions, and opportunities for professional and intellectual growth that SAAMUSC provides wonderfully complements and expands upon the MLIS program. Thank you to my fellow officers and to Dr. Buchanan for their support and making this year a great one! And best of luck to everyone else graduating soon and to everyone continuing their studies!

Kelley Klor - LIGSA Liason

I think one of the most important skills to sharpen during your graduate education is networking. Do not be afraid to reach out to people you admire and ask questions. Being involved with SAAMUSC helped me improve my networking skills, and provided opportunities to learn from a wide range of different archivists. Archival professionals are friendly and eager to share their collections and their experiences. It's incredibly fun to meet other archivists at conferences and professional events that have authored articles that influenced you. I encourage you to make the most of your time as a graduate student, and as a member of SAAMUSC and widen your network as much as you can. I'm grateful for the friendships that resulted from my involvement with SISLT and SAAMUSC, and I wish all of you continued success in your graduate school journey!
